

- Listen Live
- Podcasts
- Videos
- Photos
- On Air
- Blogs
- Bing Lounge
- KINK Community
- What's Going On
- Extras

The Inessa Blog

Just Added

- Sons of Malarkey
- READ: Patricia Cornwell
- 5 Things to DO This W-end
- Laura Veirs

Inessa

- Inessa's Blog | The Book Club
- Local Music Spotlight
- Bio | Photos

Back to Inessa's Blog

Sons of Malarkey

- Recommend
- Facebook
- Tweet
- RSS

December 7, 2011, 2:47 pm

The mantra of this band? "We want to play the music we love with the people we love. For a few hours each night, we want the audience to feel the happiness we do while we're playing"

SONS OF MALARKEY

The bio on their website spells it out:

As the newly formed band began to find their sound, many influences from groups such as the Dubliners, the Pogues, Christie Moore, the Waterboys, the Young Dubliners, and Gaelic Storm created a desire for a fuller sound. Read more HERE. There is a link to their upcoming gigs, as well.

nessickles Hippest guy on the planet: Oldman exorcises 'ghost of Guinness' with 'Tinker' sfgate.com/cgi-bin/articl... via @sfgate 10 hours ago · reply · retweet · favorite nessickles @DanielCheeks hah. i saw that as an option. funny i DO like his act. but went with American horror story dvr instead. yesterday · reply · retweet · favorite nessickles The Black Keys Change Gears With 'El Camino': nyti.ms/vdkOiu yesterday · reply · retweet · favorite

Join the conversation

Local Music Spotlight

- Sons of Malarkey
- Laura Veirs
- Water Tower
- Typhoon
- Tracy Grammer

Local Music Spotlight Interviews

The Book Club

- READ: Patricia Cornwell
- KINK Book Club H'day Fair
- READ: Anarchy and True Prep
- READ: Berlin 1961